

Moving home gas and electricity

This is quick and easy advice on what to do about your gas and electricity companies when you move house.

If you are moving home, then you need to call you gas and electric company and tell them:

When you are moving (the date)

Where you are moving to (your new address)

On the day you move out, you should write down the amounts on the gas and electric meters in the home you are leaving.

You should also do the same in the house you are moving to.

Your gas or electric company may need these figures to make sure you do not pay more than you should.
